Broken washing machines or fridges

« on: 01. Mar 2006 at 22:38 »

I got a new hobbie of fixing them 😊 😊
Here fishy...fishy 😊 😊

I live with fear and danger everyday.....sometimes she lets me out to fish.

Hey Jay,
Just go around to the clothes bins at the bus station carpark just below garden City (just up the hill from the Woolies servo) and help your self. When I drove past there a couple of weeks ago there was tons of them thrown around. it should be called Garden city tip with all the crap lying around.
Don't get caught on A Current Affair either matey..

Hope you don't find them as frustrating as I did when I had to fix them for a crust 😊
Cheers Scott

I've got a busted washing machine (and a dryer too) that you can have. The kerbside collection for my area (Newmarket) is on 13/03/06 so they will be going out for that. Perhaps doing the rounds in the

We have a great Kelvinator trimline upright freezer, it works great, just too noisy, tried to sell it in the weekend shopper, no takers, were asking $50. I'm sure if you could work out what's making the noise it would go for another 10 years.

Would have sent the old washing machine your way a month ago if I'd known Jay. Other than that, got a fridge (Fisher and Paykal heap of sh!) that's on it's way out within the next 4 months.

I hope he does. At least we might catch some fish and we won't have to rely on Jay to catch them for us.

Thanx anyway Sean 😊

Cheers Finga...will do as your right....heaps of crap there...I'd be doing them a favour 😊.

Simon and Finga....will do too....the more the merrier. If I ain't got enough by mid march I'll come stop by Simon.

Canoedle....if it's still for sale....I'm interested as I will actually use that one 😊.

Ben....I'll send you a spot to drop it over in a month 😊.
